NEWS OF THE DAY.

-Gold closed on Saturday at 9194. -The New York cotton market closed dull and nominal at 224 cents for uplands, with sales of 544 bales.

In Liverpool cotton opened quiet and steady, but closed strong at 104d for uplands and 101d for Orleans. The sales amounted to 15,000 bales.

The remains of General Robert Anderson, of Fort Sumter fame, are expected at Norfolk on the Guerriere the last of this month. .-The foreign trade of San Francisco has increased over $9,000,000 during the last year, over $7,000,000 being with China. It is gratifying to know that by Senator Sherman's new tariff bill bologna sausage and sour krout are to be admitted free of duty. ...The Temperance party will be the first in the field this year, with their candidate for President. They hold their nominating convention in Columbus, Ohio, February 22.

-Among the modern improvements we have introduced into Japan is kerosene. Its advance in civilization was satisfactorily proved by a big fire at Yokohama, which burned up

The French ladles in different European capita's are taking in hand the herculean task of raising funds to pay off the indemnity to Germany by means of bazaars. It reminds one of the energetic Mrs. Partington, who tried to keep back the waves of the ocean with har broom.

-When Fisk first had reason to believe Stokes was his rival in the affections of Mansfield, he told her Erle was going up on a certain day, believing she would inform her other lover. Fisk was right in his surmise. Stokes purchased Erie heavily, borrowing largely. Erle went down, and Stokes lost over $100,000. The Germans in New York, or many of them, refuse to be vaccinated, having no faith in that remedy; and the result is that seventyfive per cent. of the cases of small-pox in the city are among that class of the population. This ought to convince the unbelievers in the virtues of vaccine virus, if nothing else will.

There are at present one hundred miles of block ice on the Hudson ten inches thick, and ice-men state that such a surface has not been known for years. By the close of this week, five thousand men, boys and horses will be at however protracted, can have but one terwork at all points, and, aided by steam elevators, will harry the harvest to a close.

The lawsuit of the period is on trial a Kingston, N. Y., in the suit of Quimby vs. James, in which a widow of forty-eight sues an old man for a breach of promise which is alleged to have been given while delendant's wife was still living. The widow charges that he jilted her after his wife died and wedded nother. Hence these tears.

-London Punch contains this account of miracle? Boy-Dunno. Parson-Well, if the sun were to shine in the middle of the night, what should you say it was? Boy-The moon. Parson-But it you were told it was the sun, what should you say it was? Boy-A lie. Parson-I don't tell lies. Suppose I told you it was the sun, what would you say then? Boy-That yer wasn't sober !"

-A New York letter of Wednesday says: "The suspicion that Mayor Hall had permanently retired from office was dissipated by his resumption of duty there this afternoon. No sooner was he seated at his deak than he was beset by numerous newspaper reporters anxious to obtain a statement from him as to what he has been doing during the past ten days' retirement; but as his Honor was not in his usual communicative mood, the gentlemen of the press had to go away no wiser than they came."

The Massachusetts Legislature is discussing the question of selling the famous schoolship in which so many distinguished visitors to Boston have been invited to dine, and on which Dickens made a very handsome speech to the boys. It is argued that the decline in American shipping and other causes have prothe education afforded on the ship, which is now little different from that which can be just as readily afforded on shore. Hence it does not seem worth while to keep up the man, and particularly a man of the world show of seamanship for vicious boys.

continuance of fine weather is having a very mystery, or, rather, would be such, were not favorable effect upon general business. In some of the leading departments of wholesale trade there is an activity not always noticeable so early in the season. Merchants from Louisville, New Orleans, Galveston, and other remote points, are here in considerable numbers, while Savannah and Charleston houses are beginning to put in an appearance. The Cincinnati and St. Louis people are expected along in the course of next week. On all hands the anticipations are in favor of an unusually brisk spring trade commencing earlier than has been the rule of late years."

-Advices from Brazil to the 7th ult. represent that the emancipation movement is gradually changing into a genuine enthusiasm on the part of the people, who are liberating their slaves throughout the empire with entire willingness and spontaneity. The bill, as it stands now, does very little for those who are the whole bad lot. He it was who instinow slaves; and, as the Liberals are very anxious to obtain the supremacy, it is almost sure that the subject will be brought up for further legislation next session. It is the opinion of shrewd politicians that the present law is only the first of a series of laws that will be annually passed until not a single slave is left on the soil of Brazil. In the meanwhile. as if in anticipation of the slow march of legislation, the owners are solving the problem by taking the law into their own hands. The president of the Province of Rio Grande de Norte heads a movement which has for its object the establishment of a society for the liberation of existing slaves, as well as for the rearing, educating and apprenticing of the children of slave mothers.

-The benefit performance extended to Matilda Heron at Niblo's Garden, New York. Wednesday, was not only given with a most worthy object, but also an exceptionally in- will.

teresting entertainment. The net receipts amounted to something over $4000, a very handsome sum and very acceptable to the recipient. The programme was colossal. First, two young lady pupils of Miss Heron's appeared in Camille and won no little applause. Then Edwin Booth appeared as Petruchio, and with the fall of the curtain Levy claimed the attention of the audience with one of his cornet solos. The Fifth Avenue Company then gave the third act of "Divorce," and John Brougham, with Wallack's Company, played "His Last Legs." Laura Keene came, next, in a scene from the "School for Scandal," and she was followed by Master Roselle, Mr. Gassin, Charley Backus, Sheridan and Mack, Rollin Howard, Sturges, and the Majiltons. At the conclusion Miss Heron came before the curtain and thanked the audience in a brief speech, in the course of which she adverted to the false reports about her conduct in St. Louis and the persecutions which she has had to undergo. She was very much affected during the delivery of the address, and the vast audience displayed similar emo-

Railway Extension Southward.

The very natural endeavor of the Pennsylvania Company, aided by Walters & Co., of Baltimore, to secure uninterrupted communication with all parts of the South, meets with the equally natural opposition of minor companies along the routes of through transit. An effort is being made in our sister State to invalidate the lease of the North Carolina Railroad. On both sides of Richmond, Va., impediments are in the way of the Pennsylvanians. On the north, the Fredericksburg Railroad steadily holds out against the persistent attempts made by the Scott-Walters combination to effect a lease or a purchase. On the south, the Richmond and Petersburg Road was obtained after a hard struggle last winter in the Virginia Legislature, but the Petersburg Road leading to Weldon is yet to be secured. Many believe that it will be mastered without much difficulty when the proper moment arrives. Whether the railroad wars which agitated Virginia a year ago are to be renewed we have no means of knowing. At present the Virginians seem fully occupied with the public debt and the subject of taxation. Occasional articles on the subject of a general railroad law appear in the Richmond papers. One of these papers charges Mr. Tom Scott with perfidy in urging the passage of this law, his object being to get rid of the obligations to sundry projected railroads incurred last year when he was hard pressed for votes. In fact, Scott finds himself in rather a tight place. He is evidently in no hurry to fulfil his promises, and yet, if he fail to do so, he will bring about his ears a hornet's nest of enemies, who will be eager to defeat his general railroad law. But the Railroad King of the Keystone State is accustomed to tight places, and to the methods of escape from them. He is patient withal, and abundantly able to wait. His vaulting ambition may overleap itself, and his Pennsylvania Company may smash, but sooner or later the extensions he is seeking will be accomplished-perhaps by another man. The consolidation of lines of traffic is a corollary of political centralization. It is as profitable to deplore the one as the other, and resistance in either case,

A perusal of this correspondence, about which so much has been said, and from which so much was hoped by the scandalloving public, will scarcely repay the reader for his trouble. There is nothing very pru- most interested are, after all, the great marient in it, and very little of interest, except | joilly of investors who purchased South Caro-"A Young Positivist:" "Parson—What is a in a legal point of view, and as an index of lines a year or two since when the State was the character of the parties involved. Fisk appears to better advantage than might have been expected. His grammar is bad, of course, but his sentiments are above the level of mere animal passion, and, at times, rise to the elevation of something akin to pure affection. He seems to have entertained for Mansfield more than a passing farcy, to have become fascinated by her, and even goes so far as to characterize his feeling for her as "holy." She, on the other hand, thought only of herself, and how much she could make out of her victimmaking good the old adage that a bad woman is worse than a bad man.

mination. Money is omnipotent-in these

It is true that Fisk's passion waxed and waned, as even the noblest of human emotions will, but, had she proved faithful to him, it is probable that her hold upon him would have been indefinite. How or why she was induced to exchange the Prince of Erie for Stokes does not appear in the letters, of which few of her own are given. Stokes was a handsomer man than Fisk. and that may have had something to do all such women are. She played her cards badly. Fisk, too, was a fool. Why any Italy about 2000 each, and then the list tapers like Fisk, should allow sentiment to blind -A New York correspondent writes: "The him to the real character of such a woman is a the story so old and oft repeated. There can be no doubt that he tried hard to over come his evil propensities; to break off the connection with Mansfield, and, as he himself declares, to say to the tempting devil, "Get thee behind me, Satan." He succeeded, thanks more to Stokes than to his own strength of will, but the woman would not let him alone. She approached him again and again, for money generally, but sometimes for a personal interview. Fisk could never see her without being softened. His confessions to her of his own weakness will be wondered at by all those who looked upon him as a mere brute in body and soul.

So far as the letters show, Stokes is the villain of the play-the worst by odds of gated Mansfield to the attempt to black-mail Fisk. That there was such an attempt, deliberately planned and resolutely carried out, is beyond question. In this attempt, Stokes found willing coadjutors among the lower class of lawyers, who thought they could make a good thing of it. But the lawyers of New York do not appear to have followed the example of their brethren in London, who incited Arthur Orton to claim the estate of Tichborne. Stokes is the prime mover, not the lawyers. After he has accepted fifteen thousand dollars for the Mansfield letters, after he has signed the legal instrument discharging Fisk, he spends the money and renews the suit. Whether Mansfield encouraged him to do this, the letters do not tell. The trial

The Blue Ridge Railroad,

The interests of this great enterprise have again been committed to the keeping of a new set of officers. At a meeting of the directors of the road, held in Columbia, on Friday last, the following changes in the management of the road were consummated: The resignation of Colonel Cothran was accepted, he stating that he had only taken the position of President as a temporary expedient-his business pursuits preventing his giving the necessary attention to the office. Messrs. Gary, Gulick, Butler and Palmer having resigned, their positions were filled by the election of Messrs. C. D. Melton, Thomas Steers, George W. Waterman, James M. Allen and F. S. Jacobs, the latter being also chosen Secretary and Treasurer of the company. Colonel John J. Patterson was elected to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Colonel Cothran. Thomas J. Steers, Esq., was elected Vice-President. The Phanix gives us the following assurance, which would be cheering indeed if we had not so often before heard similar promises which have never been fulfilled: 'It is understood that this highly important work-the completion of the Blue Ridge Rallroad-will be pushed forward rapidly,

"We have no idea that this scheme is practicable, even were it right. We oppose it in toto. We shall resist every effort, come from what quarter it may, to saddle upon the pecple of this State the iraud bonds. The debt of the State of South Carolina the people ought to be able to pay, and the honest debt of the State they are willing to pay. But let the ine of demarkation be drawn between the bonds good, bad and indifferent. The credit of the State, under the present regime, is dead. Our finances are rotten to the core. The pyramid of fraud must fall. Let us meet our just obligations, and the first duty before us is to ascertain what these are. And yet, omitting this, we find our financiers engaged in tinkering. The effort is to saddle upon the poor taxpayers of South Carolina the frauduent over-issues, and thus substantially to compound with the bond swindlers. The question at issue between the bond swindlers and the people of South Carolina must be settled first in the courts. After we have called the Ring to account, it will be time enough then to talk about this adjustment. We invite the financial tinkers to help us, and not the Ring. As for the Union Trust Company, we advise it to go about its business."

The Columbia Union, strange to say ignores the whole movement. Why is this

What the Bondholders Say.

The New York Herald, of Friday, in its report of the Stock Market for the preceding day, says: "The South Carolina July issues advanced to thirty and a half, or five per cent., since yesterday morning. The real character of the negotiations at present on foot between parties in this city and in Columbia is not clearly understood, but so far as they point to any repudiation, such as proposed in a comcents on the dollar, they are vigorously opposed by holders of bonds who paid more than fifty. The buyers at low figures do not object, of course, to a measure which proposes to give them fifty cents for what they have bought at twenty to twenty-five cents; but the parties honorably paying its interest. These parties are quite willing the State should default in the interest for a season or two rather than they should submit to such a wholesale repudiation or the principal of the debt."

Sources of Our Population.

The statistics of passengers who arrived at the Port of New York during the year 1871 population. The total arrivals are summed up by a contemporary, from the statistical tables, at a little over 270,000. Of these, 40.000 were citizens returning from abroad, leaving as the number of immigrants 230,000, which, we believe, is about the same as last year. Germany furnishes more of these than any other nation, which is not surprising when the area and populousness of the new empire are taken into the account. Her contribution is 88,601. If, however, Great Britain is treated as one nation, which she is quite as much as Germany, her delegation is the largest, thus: England 51,027; Ireland 50,220; Scotland 10,154; Wales 1224—making an aggregate of 112,625. Sweden follows with 10,000, while Norway sends only 2700. France contributes 4000; Denmark, Switzerland and off rapidly until it reaches Greece, whose genial skies were abandoned by only seven of her sons and daughters for the sterner climate of America.

hostetter's Bitters.

Health would be much more carefully guarded than it is at present, and the average of human life lengthened by many years, if common sense and the light of experience were accepted by the universal public as their medical monitor and guide. The true philosophy of health is simple. It consists in refraining from indugences and imprudences which impair the vital forces, and in supplying any deficiency of vital power and constitutional vigor that may exist, by invigoronstitutional vigor that may exist, by invigorating and alterative treatment. To reinfo: ce and regulate a feeble system, and to prevent a more rigorous physique from yielding to unhealthy and debilitating influences, HOSTETTER'S STOM-ACH BITTERS is unquestionably the most potent of all vegetable purifiers. As a stimulant, it :s the purest ever administered in medical practice: as a tonic and stomachic, the most infallible; as an anti-billious agent, the safest and surest, and as an aperient and regulating medicine, mild and painless, yet irresistible. It is a protection against disease of every kind, and all seasons, and is particularly efficacious as a means of fore arming the system against the ailments generated by a raw, damp, ungenial atmosphere Hence its great value as a winter tonic and invigorant. No one predisposed to indigestion, diliousness, constipation, rheumatism or nervous headache should ever be without this Vital Elixir. as a certain class of country dealers are very anxious to dose their customers with "local bi ters" of a worthless or pernicious character, which they represent to be equal or superior to the great national tonic, the public is hereby fore warned against their "tricks of trad ." ian22-mwf3D&C
